LABOR NEEDED FOR HAPPINESS

JOY DEPENDS ON HIGHER THINGS, DUNCAN SAYS.

MANY AT DEDICATION

Hall Crowded Last Night—Musical Numbers Well Received—Old Masons Are Present.

Happiness is dependent upon the higher things of life, upon sacrifices encountered on the way, and upon a willingness to perform menial tasks in order to enjoy the greated and worth while things, Judge A. B. Duncan of St. Joseph told those at the dedication ceremonies at the new Masonic hall yesterday afternoon.

"The building of this hall represents sacrifices, willingness to do all kinds of work and the ability to visualize the finished product," the judge said.

About 250 persons were present at the dedication yesterday afternoon. The ceremony was in charge of Jonathan Stark, district deputy grand master, and former Worshipful Master of Maryville lodge, A. F. & A. M., No. 165. The program was under the direction of Martin A. Lewis, jr., Worshipful Master of Maryville lodge, A. F. & A. M., No. 165.

Several selections were furnished by the Shrine quartet of St. Joseph and Mrs. Fred Wolfers sang two numbers. Miss Doris Stoneburner, 11-year-old cornetist of Ravenwood, received an ovation following a selection.

Orestes Mitchell, former Worthy Grand Master of the Masonic lodges of Missouri, made a short talk as did several other members of the Shrine delegation.

Many There Last Night.

The hall was crowded last night. About 500 persons were present. Uel W. Lamkin was chairman. Six persons were present at the program who have been Masons for fifty years or more. They were: John G. Grems, Nathaniel Sisson, Scott K. Snively, I. N. Wray, L. P. Colvin and Dr. E. W. Bishop of Ravenwood.

Mrs. C. E. Peabody of St. Joseph, past Worthy Grand Matron of the Order of Eastern Star, was introducen and made a short speech. Scott K. Snively, well known by the "old timers" of Nodaway County, declared that this section of the state is "the best in the United States or all of North America." He added that Nodaway is noted for its beautiful women. Mr. Snively is 81 years old and a charter member of odaway lodge, A. F. & A. M., No. 470. He now lives at Blockton, Ia., and was here especially for the dedication. He reminisced on some of his experiences in Nodaway County.

Shriners Liberal.

Musical numbers were furnished by the Shrine quartet, College orchestra, Miss Doris Stoneburner, Jay Goodman of the Shrine quartet and H. O. Hickernell. The quartet responded to numerous encores as did Mr. Goodman, and the St. Joseph musicians early won their way into the hearts of music lovers. All of the other numbers were also much appreciated by the audience. Miss Laveta McClanahan furnished a reading which was thoroughly enjoyed by her hearers.

Richard Kuchs, from whom the building was purchased last year, was on the platform last night. Mr. Kuchs has always taken a prominent part in Masonic work and it was because of his liberal terms that the purchase of the building was possible. Upon behalf of Mr. Kuch, C. C. Hellmers said that the former owner of the building desired that the older Masons bear the large part of the burden. Mr. Kuchs believes that the younger Masons are not yet financially able to assume a great part of the responsibility for paying for the building.

Should Join For Peace.

Masonry and the church should join forces in the struggle for world peace, Mr. Lamkin said in a short address. The Masonic lodges constitute one of the greatest forces for right living in this community, he added, and the ideals taught in the lodge room should be lived on the outside every day in the week.

The women of the Eastern Star served refreshments of ice cream and cake in the new banquet hall.

Miss Bessie McGettigan left last night for Cleveland, Ohio, after a month's vacation visit at home. She will enter her junior year at St. John's Training School for nurses.

Trousers Stolen Last Night From Tolles Co.

Lock On Central Display Window Broken.—Thief Did Not Take Coats and Vests.

Some thieves are particular. At least, this would be the inference when a person takes a pair of pants and leaves the coat and vest.

Sometime last night a thief broke into the center display cabinet at the front of the Tolles Clothing Co., store, and left with two pairs of pants which were on pedestals in the show window. The coats and vests to match the trousers were not taken.

Frank Myers, clerk at Tolles, thought the window looked peculiar when he arrived at work this morning, but it was not until he noticed the broken lock that he discovered the loss.

GIVE PRAYERS OF SYMPATHY

LOCAL PRIESTS WILL PRAY FOR MEXICAN CATHOLICS.

BY ORDER OF BISHOP

Rev. Father Francis Gilfillan Sends Request to Heads of All Parishes In St. Joseph Diocese.

Prayers of sympathy for Catholics of Mexico will be offered in both local churches of that denomination tomorrow. The prayers will be at both morning services, at 7:30 and 9:30 o'clock.

The Rev. Father Henry F. Niemann of St. Patrick's Church, and Father Norbert Wagner of St. Mary's Church, have received letters from Right Rev. Bishop Francis Gilfillan of St. Joseph, requesting that the prayers be offered tomorrow. This will be done all over the St. Joseph diocese.

The following is from today's Catholic Tribune of St. Joseph:

Right Rev. Bishop Gilfillan, D. D., in deep sympathy with the oppressed Catholics of Mexico, has requested that prayers be offered tomorrow throughout the diocese, and with that intention a few days ago addressed the following appeal to the clergy:

Reverend and Dear Father:

The Holy Father, pierced with sorrow and compassion over the cruel and unjust persecution which the government of Mexico has directed against Catholics and the Catholic religion, appeals to the faithful of the entire world to join with him in fervent prayer that this terrible oppression may pass away, and that God, in His mercy, may pardon those who are guilty of it.

His Holiness has appointed Sunday, August 1, the Feast of St. Peter's Chains, as a day of special prayer for this intention.

You will, therefore, dear Father, commend this urgent request to your faithful people, asking, in particular, all those who approach the Holy Table on the Great Feast of the Portiuncula, celebrated on this day, to offer their Holy Communions for this purpose. Also, at the end of each Mass you will please recite the Memorare, commonly known at St. Bernard's prayer, for the same intention.

Very faithfully in Christ,
FRANCIS GILFILLAN,
Bishop of St. Joseph.

Two Are Held After a Liquor Raid Today

George Clemons Charged With Possessing Mash, While Ovid Rhoades Faces Possession and Manufacture Charge.

As a result of a search made by Sheriff Lowell B. Campbell and Deputies Harve England and John Rasco, George Clemons, living two miles southeast of Guilford, and Ovid Rhoades, 18 years old, living at Guilford, were arrested this afternoon. Clemons is held on a charge of possession of mash while young Rhoades is charged with possession of a still and the manufacturer and sale of intoxicating liquor.

The officers went to the Clemons place near Guilford and found a small quantity of mash in his house. The still was found about one-half mile from the Clemons house, in a bunch of weeds on a small island between the old Platte river bed and the new river bed. In addition to the still, there was a stove, coils, and two barrels, one about half full of mash.

Grover Leffler and daughter, Jean, of De Queen, Ark., came today to visit the former's mother, Mrs. Frances Leffler of Wilcox.

EXPECT LIGHT VOTE TUESDAY

LITTLE INTEREST IN COUNTY CONTESTS HERE.

SENATORIAL RACE HOT

Voters Should Keep in Mind Both Short and Long Terms—Instructions Are Given.

Next Tuesday is the primary election day and as far as Nodaway County is concerned little interest has been manifested in the primary outside of the race for United States Senator. There are a few contests for local offices on both tickets, but little or no stir has been made in these circles, the candidates presenting their claims with no hurrahs. In every way the primary campaign has been a quiet affair in this county.

Predictions are being made by both Republican and Democratic leaders that the vote here next Tuesday will be light.

As the voting approaches there seems to be considerable interest in the United States Senatorial race, but whether much of a vote will be brought out is problematical.

Voters should be careful in balloting for candidates for senator, keeping in mind that some of the candidates are asking for both a short and long term and the others for just one of the terms.

On the Republican ticket, Senator George H. Williams and Blodgett Priest are asking for both terms. Their names will appear on the ballot twice just the same as if they were running for two different offices. David M. Proctor is a candidate for the long term only.

On the Democratic ticket, Harry B. Hawes and Robert L. Young are asking for both terms. W. H. Meredith is running for the short term only and Ewing Cockrell is running for the long term only.

If the voter wishes to vote for Williams for both the short and long terms, he should scratch the names of all other senatorial candidates. Thus he will leave Williams' name appear twice on the ballot and his vote has been cast for Williams for both the short and long term. The same procedure is necessary to vote for Priest for both the long and short terms, but the voter can vote for two different men, if he desires. As Proctor is only a candidate for the long term, a voter in voting for the short term nomination will have to select between Williams and Priest.

Also if the Democratic voter wishes to vote for Hawes for both the short and long terms, he should scratch the names of all other candidates.

It is possible to vote for any two candidates in the race by approving one for a short term and the other for a long term. In doing this, however, the voter must keep in mind that two of the candidates are asking for both of the terms and two of them for just one of the two terms.

The rather unusual situation came about in this way:

When Senator S. P. Spencer died, Governor Sam Baker appointed the present Senator, G. H. Williams, to fill the vacancy until Spencer's successor was duly elected and qualified. He was not appointed to fill the unexpired term as many people seem to think.

Spencer's term will not expire until March 4, 1927, but Williams, who is serving in his place, will step out of the office after the November election unless he should be elected to the office for which he is a candidate at the present time.

Thus, candidates are running for both the short and long terms or for just one of them. The short term means the period of time from November until March 4, the balance of Spencer's term while the long term is really a full term of senator which is six years.

The election may result in Missouri sending one man to Washington as Senator from November until March and a different one from March 4 for the next six years.

Every voting citizen should be interested in nominating for offices on their respective tickets the best man, and every one who has a vote should cast it.

Mrs. L. H. Ellsworth and sons, Burton and Edwin Claude, of Kansas City, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Rhodes for a week, went to Ravenwood this afternoon to visit relatives.

A Woman Can Keep a Secret; So She Man

Miss Doris Marie Goforth of Maryville and Leon Woolhether of Tarkio Married Last October.

The old theory that a woman can't keep a secret has proved a fallacy. It has also been proved that a man can keep a secret if he wants to.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Goforth announce the marriage of their daughter, Doris Marie, to Mr. Leon Woolhether, which took place at Atchison, Kan., last October.

Mr. and Mrs. Woolhether have succeeded in keeping their marriage a secret from the immediate families and their most intimate friends until a short time ago.

Mr. Woolhether and his bride expect soon to make their future home in Tarkio where the former has been in business for a number of years.

"OUT TO GET" MA FERGUSON

RESIGNATION OF TEXAS GOVERNOR IS DEMANDED.

LOST ELECTION BET

Democrats Declare People of State "Have Moral Right to Demand Performance of Pact."

Austin, Tex., July 31.—A resolution demanding that Governor Miriam A Ferguson resign immediately in compliance with her agreement with Dan Moody, Democratic nominee, and stating that the people of Texas "have their moral right to demand performance of the pact", was adopted by the Travis County Democratic convention here today.

Mrs. Ferguson, in her recent campaign for re-election, declared she would resign immediately if Moody led her by one vote, if, on the other hand, Moody would resign as attorney-general if she defeated him by 25,000 votes. Moody accepted.

Soon after her defeat, Mrs. Ferguson announced she would resign some time in September after the state legislature, convening at her wishes, disposes of some highway affairs.

Agitation among county organizations led to today's demand here. Other county organizations were reported considering a similar resolution today.

"Although not legally enforceable, the agreement is morally binding," the Travis County resolution read today. "The governor had both the right and power to propose the agreement and she has the power but not the right to violate it. She must answer at the bar of public opinion."

Large Crowd Attends Miller Funeral Rites

Several Organizations Attend Services At First Methodist Church In a Body.

Funeral services for Mrs. Catharine Miller, who died early Thursday morning after a six weeks' illness, were held at 10 o'clock this morning at the First Methodist Church and were largely attended. The service was conducted by Dr. C. C. James. A male quartet composed of Kenney Tebow, W. E. Goforth, John Mutz and Harry Mutz sang three selections, "How Firm a Foundation," "It Is Well With My Soul," and "Oh Love That Will Not Let Me Go." Miss Lucille Airy was the accompanist.

The Women's Relief Corps, which Mrs. Miller had served officially, Rosanna Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, and Sedgwick Post, G. A. R., attended the funeral in a body. The Nodaway Valley Bank was closed during the hour of the funeral.

Burial was in Miriam cemetery. The pallbearers included Dr. E. C. Branger, Emmett Scott, C. D. Bellows, E. M. Houchens, H. E. Wright and C. C. Corwin.

Out-of-town relatives and friends who attended the funeral were H. C. Miller of Vinita, Okla., J. R. Miller, Wynona, Okla., Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Miller of Kansas City, Mrs. Fletcher Irwin of Los Angeles, Cal., Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Somerville and Mr. and Mrs. A. Neil Somerville, all of Kansas City.

Assassination Tried Against De Rivera

Paris, July 31.—Private and unconfirmed advises from Barcelona today said an attempt had been made to assassinate Premier Prime de Rivera.

SOLON'S RITES TO BE PUBLIC

BODY OF SENATOR CUMMINS TO LIE IN STATE TOMORROW.

DIED YESTERDAY P. M.

People May View Body in Iowa Capitol Where He Began Life of Public Service 25 Years Ago.

Des Moines, July 31.—Under the golden dome of Iowa's state capital where he began a quarter of a century of exemplary public service the body of Albert B. Cummins will lie in state tomorrow from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Funeral services at the Cummins home Monday at 4 p. m. will be public, members of the family announced today.

No further details of the services than the time and place have been determined.

Des Moines, July 31.—Senator Albert B. Cummins, veteran political leader of Iowa, died at his home here at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was 76 years old.

Senator Cummins was stricken suddenly with an attack of heart disease and died a few moments later. He had not complained of any symptoms of the attack. His health, however, had been the cause of concern for several months.

Senator Cummins had seemed in the best of health and as late as Wednesday had made his regular visits to his office.

The veteran of many political battles had spent Wednesday with his secretary going over the outlines for the first part of the autobiography, which was to include intimate details of political history. He had recalled with evident delight several dramatic situations in which he had played an important role.

Surviving him are a daughter, five sisters, a brother, two grandsons and a greatgrandson.

Elected to the senate in 1908 as one of the pioneers in the movement which swept so many insurgents into the United States senate from the Northwest, Senator Cummins remained to become a regular of the regulars. He ascended to high place in the leadership of the Republican organization and served for more than five years as president pro tem of the senate.

In 1901, after a stormy campaign, he was elected governor of Iowa, a place he held until his election to the senate.

His term would have expired next March 4 as a result of his defeat in the recent Iowa Republican primaries. The unexpired term of Senator Cummins may be filled either by gubernatorial appointment or by special election. It is considered probably Governor Hammill will appoint a successor owing to the short time remaining before the term expires, Mar. 4, next.

In the recent session he served as chairman of the judiciary committee, Senator Watson of Indiana taking over the chairman of the interstate commerce committee, on which he retained membership as the ranking Republican. He pressed, but unsuccessfully, for action on his bill to facilitate consolidation of railroads, and as the head of the judiciary committee had supervision over a wide range of prohibition proposals, action on most of which went over until the December session.

Poincare's Financial Program Is Approved

Paris, July 31.—The Poincare financial program was passed by the Chamber of Deputies tonight. As a vote of confidence, the Chamber adopted the measure by a vote of 295 to 180.

Towns May Have Signs Vsible From Airplanes

Mankato, Minn., July 31.—Names of Minnesota towns soon may be visible from the sky if a proposal submitted by the aeronautics committee of the American Legion post here is carried out.

The committee recommends that all posts have the names of their respective towns painted on the roof of some large building, so that the towns may be identified by flyers. A number of Minnesota towns are already marked with airway signs.

Isaac Guthrie of Helena, Mo., is visiting relatives at Clearmont.

Poincare Again Given Votes of Confidence

French Premier Upheld by Chamber of Deputies by Overwhelming Majority on His Financial Plan.

Paris, July 31.—Premier Poincare had another overwhelming vote of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies today, the vote being 380 to 150. The premier proposed immediate discussion of his financial program and made it a question of confidence and was sustained by one of the largest majorities that any premier has had in recent months.

The government was given a second vote of confidence when the Chamber passed a third article on M. Poincare's financial program providing for increasing taxes on wines, cider, beer and soft drinks. The vote was 293 to 178.

MAKING PLANS FOR CONTESTS

"SLUSH TRAIL" IN ILLINOIS AND PENNSYLVANIA.

A CONTRAST IN IOWA

Senatorial Nomination Cost Brookhart But $6,000 While Smith and Vare Spent Huge Sums.

Chicago, July 31.— Slush-smeared backgrounds for contests to bar Col. Frank L. Smith of Illinois and Representative William S. Vare of Pennsylvania from the Senate if elected in November have been laid by the Senate slush fund inquiry into the Illinois primary, it was generally believed in political circles here today even among Republican leaders.

The fight upon Smith, it is predicted, will be based upon a contribution of $206,235 to his campaign by heads of public utilities organizations even while he was serving and continues to serve as chairman of the Illinois utilities commission.

Although friends of Smith deny he knew about the contributions, the political seers believe these gifts will cost him a seat in the Senate.

The Vare fight, according to the same political oracles, will be based partly on the expenditure of some $60,000 in his behalf to win the Republican nomination in Pennsylvania, but chiefly on the refusal of Thomas W. Cunningham of Philadelphia to tell where he obtained a $50,000 contribution handed over to the Vare fund.

Cunningham's defiance of the committee developed at the inquiry here and politicians close to the committee predicted it was the death blow to Vare's chances to sit in the Senate.

The first week's inquiry here also gave the fees of slush a close-up view of politics as it was played in Illinois and Pennsylvania and as it can be played elsewhere. A contrast came when Smith W. Brookhart, Iowa Republican Senatorial nominee, testified he paid out but $6,000 to win the Iowa Senatorial nomination. It was generally believed here that the Smith and Vare forces will never hear the end of the Brookhart race.

Reed Renews Fight Against Dry League

Missouri Senator Assails Meredith and Cockrell for "Conniving" With League's "Hired Men."

St. Louis, July 31.—Senator James A. Reed, whose investigation into primary campaign expenditures in Illinois and Pennsylvania has revealed startling evidence and has projected himself into the national limelight, today renewed his attack on the Anti-Saloon League.

In an interview with the Missouri Senator, he struck out against the two candidates for the Democratic nomination for Senator who had "connived with the Anti-Saloon League."

The two candidates are Willis Meredith and Judge Ewing Cockrell, who reached a compromise whereby Meredith retired for the long term and Meredith for the short term so that drys could concentrate to defeat Harry B. Hawes.

"I say that these candidates who thus connived with the hired men of the League are unfit to hold the office of Senator," Reed said.

Announce Birth of Daughter.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Tooley of Hamilton, Mo., Tuesday, July 27, to whom they have given the name Cecelia Elisa. Mrs. Tooley, formerly Miss Dona Peter, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Peter of Skidmore.

MANY HURT IN RELIGIOUS WAR

NUMBER OF ARRESTS IN CONTROVERSY IN MEXICO.

RUSH TO SERVICES

Many At Last-Minute Rites At Catholic Churches—Vatican Greatly Aroused—U. S. In Close Touch.

Mexico City, July 31.—Nearly a score of injured and seventy-two under arrest are the results of the first rioting in connection with the closing of the Catholic churches in protest against the Mexican government's religious regulations.

Rioting occurred at four churches during the early hours of the morning. Thirty-five men and women were held for trial for the rioting at the San Rafel church where eleven persons were wounded.

After efforts by the firemen to break up the demonstration with the fire hose had failed and the chief of the fire department Maya had been seriously injured, the military was called out and was finally forced to fire on the mob.

Two mounted police were seriously injured, perhaps fatally, when they attempted to clear a crowd away from the Bartolomo de las Casas church. Twenty-five arrests of men and women were made here on charges of seditious assault.

One fireman was wounded and five arrests made at Salta de las Agua church.

The closing of the churches at midnight brought to an end a rush for religious rites heretofore unknown in history.

According to Archbishop Price during the last twenty-four hours the churches were open, there were thirty thousand communions, ten thousand baptisms and twelve hundred marriages. Baptisms were made at the rate of twelve a minute and marriages were performed every two minutes. The Catholic ritual was reduced to the barest essentials.

Property valued at two billion dollars, which has been left by the priests, is now under the control of the municipal committee appointed by the government.

Rome, July 31.—The vatican was greatly aroused here today over reports that Mexico had expelled Monsignor Crespi, who has been in charge of the Apostolic legation there. The pope, it is understood, has not yet received an official report of the incident but it is being used by influential persons to urge an interdict upon Mexico.

Thus far, the pope has been opposed to an interdict since, it is reported, he feels such an action would not change the attitude of the Mexican government and might result in a weakening of the influence of the church in Mexico.

The pope's diplomatic policy is one of pursuasion rather than force.

Washington, July 31.—The state department is keeping in close touch with the situation in Mexico and there was no indication today that a change in the "hands off" policy of the Coolidge administration is contemplated.

Great concern was expressed in official circles over the possible far-reaching effect of the withdrawl of the Catholic church and the threatened confiscation of the church's property.

Secretary Kellogg is known to have received demands that a protest be forwarded to Mexico against the possible taking over of American-owned church property with the disposition immediately of the Mexican anti-alien and oil land laws cited as a precedent.

Governmental Regulations.

The City of Mexico, July 31.—The government regulations in brief are as follows:

No foreign ministers of any religion may function in Mexico.

Church ownership of property is forbidden and all such property reverts to the state.

Religious instruction in schools is forbidden.

Religious orders such as convents and monasteries are forbidden.

Priests and ministers are forbidden to participate in politics or to hold po-

Outdoor religious ceremonials and the wearing by priests of their religious robes outside their churches or residences are forbidden.

Periodicals of a religious nature are forbidden to comment upon the government's acts or to print news concerning the actions of the government.

Punishments may range from a fine of 500 pesos, or fifteen days' imprisonment, or both, up to six years' imprisonment or "additional punishment" as the court may care to impose. Trial by jury in these cases is not provided for.

Enforcement of these constitutional provisions, which date back to the constitution of 1857, has met with determined opposition by the church. Archbishop Moray del Rio has issued an order to all priests not to perform their offices after midnight tonight, when the regulations go into effect. The League for Defense of Religious Liberty has issued an appeal for an "economic boycott," to register its protests against the government's attitude.

The government's answer is that it will not be swerved from its course and that it will stamp out any attempts to weaken enforcement of its regulations. In this it has the support of the Confederation of Labor and its affiliated unions, who last night assured President Calles of their approval of his attitude.

Missionary Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the First Methodist Church was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. C. Nicholas on East Third Street. The meeting opened with singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," followed by prayer by Mrs. R. S. Braniger. Plans for the coming year were discussed and the yearly pledges to the church building and scholarship funds and the schools maintained by the society were made. Mrs. W. T. Ramsey, program leader, had charge of the devotions. The program consisted of a paper, "Call Joshua," by Mrs. M. Rittenour; recitation, "Bringing in the Kindling Wood," Jack Nicholas of St. Joseph; piano solo, Berneta McKee; violin solo, Eleanor Nicholas; cornet solo, Judd Nicholas; and the enigmas. During the social hour refreshments were served by Mrs. R. J. Pettigrew, Mrs. Lincoln Partridge, Mrs. A. R. Perrin and Mrs. Lottie Oman, the assisting hostesses.

B. B. Club.

Mrs. Fred Wyatt was hostess at an all-day meeting of the B. B. Club at her home, south of Maryville, Thursday. Quilting was the diversion for the day and dinner was served at noon cafeteria style. Plans were made for the annual fish fry to be held Aug. 12 for members and their families. Guests of the club were Mrs. Charles Rice, Mrs. Dona Meeks and Grover and Gerald Thompson. The members present were Mrs. Glen Anderson and son, Jerry, Mrs. Walter Brown and children, Lucille, Alice Marie, Junior and Harold, Mrs. Frank Hull, Mrs. D. S. Moody and daughters, Hazel and Virginia Lee, Mrs. Vern Jones and daughters, Alice, Margaret and Ruth, Mrs. Ed Russell, Mrs. Ben Neal, Mrs. Nettie Warren, Mrs. Don Kingery, Miss Nellie Cox, Dorothy Trueblood, Barbara, Trevis and Fred Wyatt, Vern Jones and the hostess. The meetings will be dispensed with during August, it was decided. Mrs. Glen Anderson will be hostess at the first meeting of the fall to be held Sept. 2.

Elkhorn Club Entertains.

Members of the Elkhorn Community Club entertained the Liberty Valley Homemakers Club at a "field day meet" on the lawn of the Baptist Church Wednesday. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Elwood Miller, and a "welcome" recitation was given by Alma Jean Daise. Sides were chosen with Mrs. Ed Cole captain of the pink side and Mrs. Oren Force captain of the white. The side winning the most points was given a pound of candy. Other prizes were awarded as follows: Potato race for girls, Miss Neva Kenny; little boys' and girls' contest, Daphene Shull; ring throwing contest, Mrs. Pearl Saunders; boys' sack race, J. W. Andrews; race of ladies from 125 to 150 pounds, Miss Arlie Pemberton; race of ladies over 150 pounds, Mrs. Ed Cole; cracker contest, Ruby Pemberton; spelling contest, Mrs. Force's side; rainy day race, Mrs. Ed Lowrance and Ruth Andrews; broad smile contest, Loyce Miller; nail driving contest, Mrs. Pemberton. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served, carrying out a pink and white color scheme. The guests included Mrs. Lillie Winger, Mrs. Roy Twaddle and daughter, Phyllis Jean, Mrs. Lee Smock and daughters, Eva and Doris Maxine, Mrs. John Inman, Maggie Lowrance, Dorothy Winger, Mrs. John Lowrance, Mrs. Dora Linville, Mrs. Bell Lowrance and son, Mrs. Katherine Shull, Mrs. Mary Lyle, Mrs. Dean Shull and daughters, Naomi and Daphene, Mrs. Dora Imboden and daughter, Lucy Twaddle, Loyce Miller, Ruby Pemberton, Mrs. Lida Wagner, Mrs. T. Walton and Mrs. Ed Lowrance. The following members were present: Mrs. Len Daise and children, Mrs. Ed Cole, Mrs. Elwood Miller, Mrs. Jim Ungles and children, Mrs. Oren Force, Mrs. Elmer Daise and children, Mrs. Will Sanders and sons, Mrs. George Kenny and children, Mrs. Andrews and son, Mrs. Pemberton and children. The Elkhorn Club will meet Aug. 18 at the Baptist Church.

Visitors from Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Thompson of Arkoe gave a dinner today in honor of the latter's brother and his family, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Gilbert, their daughter, Sadie, and son, Letcher, of Dryden, Va. The visitors arrived yesterday by motor car and will spend a week here with the Thompson family and Mr. Gilbert's brothers, W. M. and Frank Gilbert. From here they will motor to points in Kansas and Oklahoma to visit relatives.

H. K. G. Club.

A social meeting of the Mozingo Valley H. K. G. Club was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Doyle Moore. Bible quotations formed the roll call responses, and talks were given on better equipment in the homes. Assisted by Geraldine and Marceline Wiley and Virginia Lee Hackett, the hostess served refreshments. Those present were Mrs. Lewis Pistole, Mrs. Charles Killam, Mrs. Frank Ham and sons, Mrs. Will Hantze and son, Mrs. Henry Bosch and daughter, Mrs. Ben Bosch, Mrs. Warren Bloomfield, Miss Olevia Bloomfield, Mrs. Erma Hackett and children, Mrs. Roy Killam and daughter, Mrs. Will Partridge and daughter, Mrs. Dale Wiley and daughter, Mrs. Glade Wiley and daughter, Miss Verna Pistole, Miss Thelma Bosch and the hostess. Mrs. C. G. McMillen will be hostess to the club at her home in Pickering Aug. 12. Roll call will be answered by sayings of "Aunt Het."

Allen-Condon Wedding Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Allen of Los Angeles, Cal., announce the marriage of their daughter, Glenn Ola, to Mr. Thomas Vaughn Condon on Wednesday, July 28, at Los Angeles. Mr. Condon is the son of Mrs. B. E. Condon, sr., of Maryville.

W. N. Club.

Mrs. Elmer Arnold and daughter, Roberta, were hostesses at the regular meeting of the W. N. Club Thursday afternoon when Mrs. George Staten was leader. The meeting opened with singing of "O That Will Be Glory" and "The Way of the Cross Leads Home," followed by the Bible lesson from the 11th chapter of St. John and the Lord's prayer, repeated in unison. Roll call was answered by pickle recipes. After the meeting refreshments of sandwiches, pickles, fruit punch and wafers were served by the hostesses. The members and visitors in attendance were Mrs. George Sexton, Mrs. George Staten, Mrs. Sam Culver, Mrs. Everett Griffey, Mrs. Emma Shields, Mrs. Carl Staten and son, Eldon, Mrs. Joseph Lynch, Mrs. John Discus, Mrs. Ray Shields and daughter, Bonnie Louise, Miss Cecil Culver, Clyda Shields, Iola, Berniece, Beatrice and Kenneth Lee Griffey. The next meeting will be held August 12 with Mrs. John Cooper and Mrs. Nancy Cooper. Mrs. Arnold will be leader and roll call will be answered by breakfast menus.

For the last six years Democrats have suffered defeat in national and state elections because of dissension within the party and the failure of Democrats to put party loyalty above special issues.

In the meanwhile, dominated by New England and the East, the Republican party has ignored the interests of the agricultural West until farming as a business is prostrated. The greatest issue of the day is not Prohibition, or the World Court, but REPUBLICAN MISRULE. Don't be led aside on false issues! Elect a Democratic Senator!

With War About Over, Battery C Is Now Planning To Return Home

Thursday, July 29, 1926.

Dear Democrat-Forum:

Well, tonight as I sit here, can write in peace as the Red army is in full retreat. The Blue army supported by the 2nd F. A. and the 128th F. A. have swept the field and if the enemy are not all dead, will probably die "immejit."

Word was received at Camp Rumbold the night of the 27th that a large Red army had crossed into Kansas from Nebraska, apparently concentrating near Manhattan. Pursuant to orders of General A. the 128th F. A. took up the march in full field equipment early the morning of the 28th. A forward O. P. being established on Sherman Heights, the 128th bivouacked for the night on Republican Flats. Boots and saddles at daybreak, with the news that the main body of the Red army was advancing on Fort Riley. High up in the Morris Hill Area, reached by a steady uphill march of five miles from Republican Flats, the 128th F. A. went into position in support of the Blue Infantry with the 2nd F. A. supporting the left flank. The march was made in a temperature of 115 degrees on Wednesday afternoon, and about the same today. Dust almost choked men and horses. No rain here in weeks.

About 1 p. m. the enemy was seen to commence his advance upon our line of infantry and the war was on. In the center of the 128th line was Battery C, and the first shrapnel that tore into a column of Red infantry was fired by Corporal Johnny Hall, No. 1 man, 1st Section, C Battery.

First out of the gun park, first back, first to fire, first to bed and first up—that's us.

We are all pretty well tired tonight and for good reason. The heat has been terrible and the dust worse. The horses suffered today and yesterday and full field equipment only made it worse. Just as we had fired our last round of shrapnel, it quickly clouded up and almost before we could get out on the road, were hit by a terrific thunderstorm. One could hardly get the horses to face it. There was no time for a good many to don slickers and some were pretty wet. Both my boots were well filled in no time. Although the march back to camp was down some bad hills, slick with mud, C Battery came through as usual "right side up with care." The boys surely worked fierce today in all departments and in our bivouack were just in their "pup" tents and first to have their packs on the saddles this morning. Mighty fine bunch of men.

The general opinion is that the "war" is over. We are therefore expecting to turn back our riding horses to Fort Riley, our draft horses and harness and the Kansas guns back to the Kansas N. G. for their camp next week, and otherwise get ready for home. Expect to leave here in special train with 1st combat train from Albany, and service Battery from B. J. about 5:00 a. m. Sunday morning, arriving in Maryville Sunday afternoon.

Best regards,

H. F. LAWRENCE.

Family Reunion Held At Good Hope Church

A farewell reunion was held in the Good Hope Church grove Sunday. The gathering was in honor of Mr. and Mrs. George Orme and daughter, Florence, who have been visiting relatives in Hopkins and Clearmont vicinities for about one month but left for their home in Pasadena, Cal., yesterday morning.

The company began gathering at the church about 11 o'clock and the greetings and visiting began. By the time the dinner was spread on the tables which extended across the grove about 50 feet, there were about 135 or more persons present. After the dinner was spread the crowd lined up on each side of the table, Sam Ingles, the only surviving uncle of Mrs. George Orme, returned thanks, after which the meal was served cafeteria style. The visiting was much enjoyed, many relatives hadn't met for years. About 2:30 p. m., the crowd was assembled in the church where a program was much enjoyed. Congregational singing from the Sunday school books, then solos from Minnie Dowling, Catherine Lee Gray, and instrument music from little Miss Mildred Severs, Burlington Junction, only 8 years old. Then the Gillespie duet, Gertrude and Charles with their mother at the piano gave two or three numbers. A reading from Catherine Lee Gray, "Tin Horn Band," by Ben and Billie Ingels, and several other numbers were given. Henry Orme from Hopkins acted as spokesman and directed the program; he gave a talk after which the audience sang, "When the Roll is Called Up Yonder," and Sam Ingels offered a prayer.

Those who registered were:

Mr. and Mrs. George Orme, Pasadena, Cal., and Miss Florence Orme, Pasadena, Cal.

For Nodaway Co. Democrats Only

Nodaway County is lagging behind. In the general election in November two years ago the Democratic vote in Nodaway County for Governor was 6228. In the August primary election that year the total Democratic vote in the County for all candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor was only 1971. The ratio between the primary vote and the election vote was about the same for other officers.

Less than one-third of the Democratic voters of Nodaway County showed enough interest in their party to vote in the primary. In many other Missouri counties the primary vote equaled the election vote. The times call for the Democratic party as never before. You have an interest at stake.

Democrats of Nodaway County exert your influence in the nomination of your party's candidates and vote in the Primary Election to be held next Tuesday, August 3!

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

FLOATING NEEDLES

FLOAT two cambric needles in a basin of water and name the needles after an unmarried man and woman. If the needles float together the persons they are named for will marry; if they do not, no marriage. This is an old and common form of divination in most rural localities and is born of the ancient, primitive nomancy, or magic of names, and of ordinary sympathetic magic. As has been stated the ancients regarded a man's name as practically the ego of the man.

If an enemy got hold of a man's name he could hoodoo the man by hoodooing his name. Practically all peoples living in a primitive state today hold this belief of nomancy. Now when the needles are given the names of persons they become, for all magical purposes, the persons themselves. If the needles—magically the persons whose names are used—float together then by the simple operation of homeopathic magic—like producing like—so will the real persons come together in marriage; if they don't, they won't. This superstition is a good example of the survival of a piece of primitive magic, unaltered and unornamented, from the earliest times.

WE LOVE YOU.

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

NOT to one girl only
I would write a rime,
But to all the lonely,
Anywhere or time—
Yes, to ev'ry maiden
From her man apart,
Ev'ry lover laden
With a heavy heart.

But to those asunder,
Anytime or where
What the word, I wonder,
That will lighten care?
Here's the day, the reason,
Why I send a line:
It's the happy season
Of St. Valentine.

Not to one girl only
I would write a rime,
But to all the lonely,
Anywhere or time—
Not to king or caddie
With a lassie dear,
But to ev'ry laddie,
Anywhere or here.

Ev'ry maid among you,
How I hope you see
That the song that's sung you
Doesn't come from me—
Not one heart discovers,
Not one tale would tell,
But a million lovers
Send their love as well.

Man, wherever wending,
Please to understand
Not one maid is sending
Something from her hand;
But a million of them,
Just as fond and true,
Though a million love them,
Send their love to you.

It's a mighty greeting
Via Valentine,
Singing and repeating
All along the line:
Silk or rags arrayed in,
High or low your clan,
Here's to ev'ry maiden,
Here's to ev'ry man!

What the day or weather,
What the land or clime,
All of us together
Love you all the time.
All of us love only
You, and you, and you—
All of us are lonely,
All of us are true!

Strawberries Grow Out of the Rocks In Ozarks, Says Harry A. Miller, of the Land of Surprises

By HARRY A. MILLER

I was talking to a well-known editor a few days ago about the Scotland of America, the Bobby Burns Hills located in South Missouri, familiarly known as the Ozarks. He had recently visited this region of enchantment and was voluble in its praise, as he should have been. Among other things he remarked that the region was a great surprise to him and he believed it was a "coming country". I told him he was mistaken; that the country in favored sections at least, had already "arrived," and that the next decade would see even more material strides as well as civic and educational.

Did you ever see big, luscious strawberries grow out of stones; berries that not only would arouse the artistic taste of the painter, or poet, but that would fill six dollar crates quickly and line your pockets with hard money? You can see them in the land of legend just South. An investment in strawberry land by the man who is willing to work, or have capital enough to watch the other fellow work, is now yielding returns beyond expectations. A man I knew invested $1,000 in a wooded forty 3 miles from a town that is fortunate in having one of the strongest fruit growers' association in the Hills. He cleared it and sold enough wood and ties and props to pay for the place lacking a few dollars. He put ten acres in Aroma strawberries—just a year later he netted a little less than $5,000. In another instance $4000 profit was made from a purchase of 14 acres at an initial cost of $210.

Must Coax The Rocks.

But one must coax the rocks; he must risk his moral reputation while plowing; he must use his hands, and wear the skin off his knees of he find the Golconda Mines that make his bank acount fat. The average north Missourian that leaves his native black soil, perchance, and goes to this land of lingering twilights; of unsullied skies; of laughing streams; of forests haunted yet by the spirit of the Red Man; of rocky hillsides, and orchard bearing plateaus—will receive his first shock as he lights from his Pullman and gazes at hills of white stones. Unless he is a man unused to disappointment, he will probably sigh, turn back into the station waiting room as his team goes thundering on, and ask the agent about the time of the first train north.

But let him linger awhile. Let him take a car into the country above the breaks of the stream. Let him see the emerald rows of Aromas radiant with their wealth of bloom and the magnificent fruit red as rubies in the kisses of the sun, and the warm, ripening caresses of the white stones that lie glistening in contrast to the rows of matted vines. Let him imagine these same red berries as they are gathered by skilful hands and packed in clean boxes, piling up a substantial aggregation of dollars—and this north Missourian will begin to grow interested. His eyes will open wide, at his first surprise when he learns that men like himself are actually making some money simply by rearranging rocks that the shovel plow is striking, he will probably exclaim as many do—"The half has not been told me."

It is a real sensation when he learns by inquiry from banking sources that the Ozark of southwest Missouri alone this year produced nearly four millions of dollars of strawberries alone.

But there are the grapes. Bacchus himself would grow drunken should he again come to life and dwell in the Ozark land. Four years ago this region sent its first carload of purple-pleasures into Eastern markets. This year of grace 1926 the best estimates place the grape crop at 1000 car loads. Some expansion! The baskets are purchased through the Grape Growers' Association at around 3 cents apiece. The average price for all grapes last season was 25c for a 5-pound basket. Profit? And a grape patch 3 years from the planting will produce a profitable commercial crop.

The apple crop too is enormous and the fruit has a delicacy of flavor that has advertised itself without clap-trap methods. The Ozarks have a clear field. Grapes are placed upon eastern markets 40 days prior to any Concords and Moore's Early produced in America. Summer homes are dotting the green hills; summer resorts flourish; good roads are there and good people, as warm-hearted and God-fearing as America can boast of, and they are all Americans. In my travels and residence there, I have seldom seen a foreigner, nor have I heard a foreign tongue.

When a man once gets inoculated with the Ozark germ it seldom leaves his system. But the germ is not annoying! Here one feels the call of recreation, work, happiness. It comes from rock-crowned hills, from picturesque valleys, from hospitable villages, from winding roads, from sunny slopes, from air and clouds, and blue sky.

It is the call of the Ozarks!

Some day we shall know the Hills better and then we shall all wish we were among them.

FITTING THE OCCASION

There once lived in an Irish settlement of St. Louis a man of Erin whose very life revolved around proverbs. For every occasion, he had a "saying," and he became noted for his philosophy on subjects of the day.

But this Irishman ran the matter into the ground, as they say. He was the father of a large family, and one boy, the butt of many proverbial advices, was finally driven from home by them.

He affiliated himself with a circus as a tentman. The life was hard and the remuneration was small. Finally, worn out and homesick, he returned one day to the parental home.

Old Patrick met him at the door.

"Begone, ye blackguard. How many times have I told ye that a rollin' stone gathers no moss."

The boy returned to the circus. This time, however, he joined a band of card sharks, and in due time reaped a harvest from the unsuspecting public.

After two years, he again returned home, this time clad in Scottish plaid, diamonds in shirt front and on each finger. He drove his big car up in front of the fatherly home and stepped to the ground, lighting a cigar with a ten dollar bill.

Old Patrick was on the doorstep. He took in the situation fully, and then stumbled toward his son.

"Come to me arms, Dinty, me bye. How often have I told ye that it's th' ramblin' bee that gets th' honey."

Hints and Helps for Farmers

by J. Ross Fleetwood County Extension Agent

Threshing is pretty well over now. One more week of favorable weather will see most of the small grain crop of Nodaway County in the bin. Now that threshing is nearly over, corn laid by, and most of the hay up, most farmers can slack their pace for a few days and get a little much-needed rest.

The proper time for culling the hens is here. It should be done during August or the first part of September. There is probably no one poultry practice which will pay as well for the labor as will the culling of your hens and selling out of the non-layers. However, there is a right way and a wrong way to cull. No flock should be culled which has not received a balanced ration for three weeks previous to culling. If hens have not been fed properly they cannot be expected to be laying.

Culling demonstrations are held for the purpose of teaching people to cull their own flocks and do it right, so this year no flocks will be culled which have not been properly fed for at least three weeks. A good mash is equal parts of bran, shorts and 20 per cent tankage. This should be before the hens at all times.

The movement for better beef and a standardized system of marking beef grades should merit the support of all Nodaway County cattle men. At the present time if one buys No. 1 fruit there is almost absolute assurance that prime fruit will be secured. In other words, market grades have been standardized and each grade stamped. It is to this fact that a large measure of the success of our fruit growers may be contributed. On the other hand, if a housewife buys a prime roast there is no assurance whether this came from a prime steer or a canner cow. The effect of this is shown in the rather narrow spread between choice and the lower grades of beef cattle. If all beef were labeled with a standard mark, as to the grade in which it belonged, the consumption of the better grades of beef would be stimulated. This should reflect in a better price for the better quality beef animal. This movement is sure to be slow but it is just as sure to accomplish results for it is a move in the right direction. Lets boost the work of this committee all the time, all the way.

The Graham Baby Beef Club members took their calves over to the Maitland fair yesterday and won the first three of the four prizes offered. Ralph Eckles won first with a smooth, well finished Hereford calf. John Noblett won second with a red Shorthorn calf showing a lot of quality and not quite as much finish as Ralph's calf. Edward Geyer won third with a roan Shorthorn calf, which has a lot of quality and good conformation but not showing enough finish to place higher. The boys made a very creditable showing and two months feed will make a wonderful improvement in these calves.

Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the importance of getting ready for that fall seeding of alfalfa now. One of two factors which goes farthest in insuring a stand of alfalfa is early seed preparation. Remember, we will gladly test for acidity any soil samples brought into the office. If you want acid phosphate and inoculation they should be ordered so as to be on time.

Arthur Noid Has Masonic Cup of Great Antiquity

A Masonic loving cup, dating back four generations, and perhaps much older than that, is the property of J. Arthur Noid. This loving cup, on display in a local jewelry store, was the property of Mr. Noid's great, great grandfather, who was worshipful master at one time of a Masonic lodge in Stockholm, Sweden.

A swedish glass cutter who was in Maryville yesterday said that the loving cup is indeed an antique to be justly proud of. According to him, it was carved with a stone, a method no longer used. The cup is about six inches high and is glass.

The glass cutter said that if it were possible to trace the cup a great deal of history might be found connected with it. He suggested that it be photographed and the picture sent back to Sweden.

The loving cup has been handed down in the Noid family from generation to generation.

Seven Rules for Swimming Given by Girl Champ.

Following are seven rules for swimming training, outlined by Miss Agnes Geraghty, national breast-stroke champion:

Her idea as to swimming training are listed as follows:

1. Learn to swim when young. If you find you can't swim easily stay in the water, hold on to something and kick your feet. In time you will gain confidence.

2. Get a good teacher. It is impossible to see your own faults.

3. Stop when you get tired. The best way to develop endurance is to stop short of exhaustion.

4. Watch good swimmers, but don't try to copy their style unless assured that your own style is weak.

5. Learn one stroke well at a time. Begin with the American crawl it is less tiring.

6. Wear a snug and brief bathing suit.

7. Don't get discouraged. Swim every day that you can. Long lay offs are generally disheartening.

Slimness Is the Style.

Irvin S. Cobb, humorist, is responsible for a book, "Many Laughs for Many Days," which is a panacea for everything which smacks of the blues. In this book he tells one story which well exemplifies the dramatic manner in which Biblical references mould themselves into the brain of a child.

Once, Mr. Cobb was visiting at the home of a friend in the far South. It was a mid-summer's day and the mercury in the thermometer was hovering around the top of the column.

After lunch, the family and its guest were seated on the veranda, fighting off the heat with palm-leaf fans and wishing for some sort of a breeze.

Suddenly it was realized that the three children of the family: Martha, age four; George, age six; and Anthony, who was eleven; were missing.

The mother instituted a search for them. The servants were called in to aid in the hunt, but nowhere were the two boys and girl to be found.

The mother was in desperation. The only place in whiche they did not look was the attic. But who would be in an attic on a day such as this, and who could withstand the heat of the place for long?

The lady went to this topmost part of the house, however, and when she opened the door, a gust of stale, hot air met her with a sickening onslaught. She climbed the three or four steps to the attic proper, and there, unmindful of the oppressive heat, sat the two smaller children in one corner of the place in a sort of bower or grotto formed of old quilts and coverings hung in the place where the tin roof was of oven-like closeness. The little boy and girl were stark naked and their little pink bodies gleamed with perspiration.

The older boy, Anthony, also innocently nude with the exception of a large coon-skin cap, the tail of which hung down over his damp shoulders, was dramatically pacing back and forth in front of his brother and sister. His was a serious mein and a smile of utter serenity hovered over his countenance as his little feet pattered along the path of dust.

"Why children, what does this mean?" the mother cried.

Anthony halted abruptly, and with a gesture exclaimed, "We're acting a scene from the Bible, Mother. That's Adam and Eve there."

The mother smiled.

"And who are you, Anthony?"

A pained expression came over the lad's face.

"Why, mother, I'm surprised that you don't recognize me. I'm God Almighty himself, walking in the garden in the cool of the day."

The First Shall Be Last.

"My advice," orated the successful business man, "is to work hard and get married."

"Y-yes sir," stammered the nervous beginner, "but ain't your idea kind of vice versa?"

Subtitularly Speaking.

"Came the rosy-figured dawn"—

"Who goes there?" the guard de-ed.

What a strange phenomenon!

He had caught the dawn red-handed.

What About a Park For Maryville: Great For This Generation, Gift For Posterity, D.A. Caldwell Says

By D. A. Caldwell, Secretary, Maryville Chamber of Commerce.

Forest Park in St. Louis, Grant Park in Chicago, Central Park in New York City, and all other parks in all cities, large and small, were made possible by the vision and foresight of citizens who realized the importance of preserving for generations yet unborn some of Nature's beauty which is so quickly lost forever before the steady advance of a city's growth. Were any of our larger cities today to attempt to purchase for park purposes an amount of land equivalent to that set aside in earlier day, the price would be so great as to prohibit any city ever having any parks.

Maryville has many things to be proud of, being well developed along educational, religious, and business lines. At the same time one of the most serious local handicaps to future development is the extremely limited amount of outdoor recreational facilities in and adjacent to this city. In creating a wonderful agricultural empire, northwest Missouri, Nature could not at the same time endow this section of the state with the lakes, streams, hills and woods that make such a strong appeal to the vacationist in the Ozarks.

It remains then for Man to do all he can to offset this d[illegible] natural handicap by making the best possible use of the material available in creating a Public Park near the city that will be a constant sorce of joy to residents of this city and county for all time to come.

Madison, Wis., a city of 50,000 and the seat of Capitol and State University, has one of the most complete park systems of any city of its size in the United States. Ideally located on a narrow isthmus between two large inland lakes, there were wonderful opportunities to develop a splendid park system. However, it has only been during the past thirty years that anything has been done to preserve for posterity large amounts of lake frontage worth millions of dollars today. When the population probably did not exceed 20,000 a small but loyal band of public spirited citizens organized the Madison Park and Pleasure Drive Association, for the specific task of raising a small fund to build about a mile of lake shore drive. So successful were they in this undertaking that instead of disbanding when the objective was obtained the organization was made permanent and to this day it is this body that administers the expenditure of all the city's funds appropriated for park purposes, which amount to close to $100,000 per year or about $2.00 per capita.

There is a tract of land to the north and east of this city and within easy walking distance which would make a wonderful park without any great amount of money having to be expended upon it. There is a splendid stand of hardwood timber that has taken many years to develop. The surface of the ground is rolling. A stream passes through it which could easily be dammed to form a beautiful little artificial lake. Drives and bridal paths could be laid out in an attractive manner. A small zoo might easily be maintained. The possibilities are endless. Not all of the development would need to be accomplished the first year.

I have seen no place in this County better suited for an ideal picnic ground. There is abundant shade, grass and room. It is easily accessible for hikers or motorists and yet is quiet as it is not on a main highway.

The price of this land will never be as low as it is today. Private enterprise is already looking at it with envious eyes as a sure investment for personal profit. Should it be developed along such lines it might be lost to the community for all time as a strictly public recreational center.

NOW would be a good time to perfect the necessary organization to secure control of such a Park for the people of Maryville and Nodaway County. In the beginning the cost need not be exhorbitant. Once the original purchase price is provided, subsequent improvements can be made at a rate in keeping with the finances of the organization.

Moberly, Mo., has a most excellent park near its city limits. Hillsboro, Ill., a city of the size of Maryville, created a large artificial lake as a source of drinking water and then developed, at one end, a splendid park. There are hundreds of other communities that have realized the importance of such work and taken steps to insure the provision of adequate facilities for proper outdoor recreation.

Man can erect buildings, construct streets, build schools, dedicate churches, and occupy homes, all of which are indispensible units in the growth of any city; but God and God alone can cause the mighty oak to cast its welcome shade over the cool green of Nature's carpet. To commune with Nature, one must be where Nature is at its best.

The development of a good Park for this progressive community is every bit as important as to pave more streets, build new schools, or repair and replace churches. For those who do not have cars, and there are many who do not, as well as for those who do, such a Park would pay untold dividends in healthful pleasure throughout all time to come. One of the first questions a wise stranger will ask when considering a city as a possible location for business and a home is "What kind of Parks do you have." If the answer is in the negative, what can be more natural that that his opinion of the community is correspondingly lowered.

Band concerts in such a Park would be enjoyed by many times the number of people who can comfortably listen to them on the streets. Public and private gatherings, large and small, would make good use of a park every day throughout the summer.

Nothing that the citizens of Maryville could do would be a more lasting monument to their progressive spirit than to provide the ways and means for this community to have a park that would be one of the 'show-places' in this section of the state. Nature has done her part and is now waiting for Man to do his.

The GIRL in the MIRROR

COPYRIGHT BY THE CENTURY COMPANY

THE STORY.

CHAPTER I.—Barbara Devon's wedding and departure of her honeymoon leaves her brother "Laurie," successful playright but somewhat inclined to wildness, without her restraining influence. His theatrical associates, Rodney Bangs and Jacob Epstein, promise to "keep an eye on him."

"Oh, I know what you'll say!" he cried. "It's none of my business, and you're your own master, and all that sort of rot. And I know you're not drinking, and God knows I'm not ass enough to take on any high moral tone and try to preach to you, whatever you do. What gets my goat, Devon, and the only thing I'm worrying about, is this infernal waste of your time and mine."

Laurie grinned, and the grin infuriated Bangs. He whirled away from it. A footstool impeded his progress, and he kicked it out of the way with large abandon. It was his habit to rush about a room when he was talking excitedly. He rushed about now; and Laurie lit a cigarette and watched him, at first angrily, and then a growing tolerance born of memories of scenes in their plays which Bangs had thrashed out in much this same manner. The world never would be wholly uninteresting while Rodney pranced about in it, cutting the air with gestures like that.

"Here I am," snapped Rodney, "ready with my play, the best plot I've had yet. You won't let me even mention it to you. Here's the new season. Here's Epstein, sitting on our doormat with a check book in each hand, waiting to put on anything we give him. You know he's lost a small fortune this fall. You know it's up to us to give him a play that will pull him out of the hole he's in. Here's Haxon, the best director in town, marking time and holding off other managers in the hope that you and I will get down to business. And here you are, the fellow we're all counting on—" He stopped for breath and adjectives.

"Yes," Laurie politely prompted him. "Here I am. What about it? What am I doing?"

"You know d—d well what you're doing. You're loafing!" Bangs fired the word at him as if it were a shell from a Big Bertha. "You're loafing till it makes us all sick to look at you. We thought a week or two of it would be enough, when you realized the conditions; but it's gone on for a month; and, instead of getting tired, you're getting more and more into the loafing habit. You abuse time till it shrieks in agony."

"Good sentence," applauded Laurie. "But don't waste it on me. Put it into a play."

Bangs seemed not to hear him. He was standing by the room's one window, now, staring unseeingly out of it, his hands deep in his pockets, taking in the knowledge of the failure of his appeal. Under the realization of this, he tossed a final taunt over his shoulder.

"I can forgive the big blunders a man makes in his life," he muttered; "but I haven't much patience with a chap that lies around and shirks at a time like this!"

Laurie removed the half-smoked cigarette from his mouth, and not finding an ash tray within reach, carefully crushed out its burning end against the polished top of the dressing case. He had grown rather pale.

"That will be about all, Bangs," he said quietly. "What you and Epstein and Haxon don't seem to remember is just one thing. If you don't like matters as they are, it's mighty easy to change them. It doesn't take half a minute to agree to dissolve a partnership."

"I know." Bangs returned to his chair, and, dropping limply into it, his hands still in his pockets, stared despondently at his outstretched legs. "That's all it means to you," he went on, morosely. "Our partnership is one in a thousand. It's based on friendship as well as on financial interest. If I do say it, it represents a combination of brains, ability, backing and prospects that comes only once in a lifetime, if it comes at all. Yet in one year you're sick of it, and tired of work. You're ready to throw it all over, and to throw over at the same time the men whose interests are bound up with yours. You're dawdling in cabarets and roadhouses and restaurants, when you might be doing Work—" Bangs' voice capitalized the word—"real work," he added fiercely, "work other fellows would give their souls to be able to do."

He ended on a flat note, oddly unlike his usual buoyant tones, and sat still as if everything had been said.

Laurie lit a fresh cigarette, drew in a mouthful of smoke, and exhaled it in a series of pretty rings. In his brief college experience he had devoted some time to acquiring this art. Admiringly watching the little rings pass through the big rings, he spoke with studied carlessness.

"It was a pretty good scene, Bangs," he said, "and it showed careful rehearsing. But it would be a lot more effective if you had a real situation to base it on. As it is, you're making a devil of a row about nothing. I worked like a horse all last year, and you know it. Now I'm resting, or loafing, if you prefer to call it that, and"—he bit off the words and fairly threw them at his friend—"it will save you and Epstein and Haxon a lot of mental wear and tear if you will mind your own business and let me alone."

"Here I Am," Snapped Rodney.

Bangs raised his eyes and dropped them again.

"You are our business," he somberly reminded his partner. "I've got so I can't work without you," he added, with a humility new to him. "You know that. And you know I've got the plot. It's ready—great Scott, it's boing in me! I'm crazy to get it out. And here I've got to sit around watching you kill time, while you know and I know that you'd be a d—n sight happier if you were on the job. Good Lord, Laurie, work's the biggest thing there is in life! Doesn't it mean anything at all to you?"

"Not just now." Laurie spoke with maddening nonchalance.

"Then there's something rotten in you."

Laurie winced, but made no answer. He hoped Bangs would go on talking and thus destroy the echo of his last words, with which the silect room seemed filled. But nothing came. Rodney's opportunity had passed, and he was lost in depressed realization of his failure. Laurie strolled back to the mirror, his forgatten tie dangling in his hand.

"We'll let it go at that," he said then. "Think things over, and make up your mind what you want to do about the contract."

"All right."

Bangs replied in the same flat notes without changing his position; but the two words gave Laurie a shock. He he had used a moment before, and did not believe that either Rodney or Epstein would contemplate a dissolution of their existing partnership; but an hour ago he would not have believed that Rodney Bangs could say to him the things he had said just now.

He was beginning to realize that he had tried his partners sorely in the month that had passed since his return to town; and all for what? He himself had brought out of the foolish experience nothing save a tired nervous system, a sense of boredom such as he had not known for a year, and, especially when he looked at Bangs, an acute mental discomfort which introspective persons would probably have diagnosed as the pangs of conscience. Laurie did not take the trouble to diagnose it. He merely resented it as a grievance added to the supreme grievance based on the fact that he had not yet even started on the high adventure he had promised himself.

He war gloomily considering both grievances, and tying his tie with his usual care, when something in the mirror caught and held his attention. He looked at it, at first casually, then with growing interest. In the glass, directly facing him, was a wide studio window. It was open, notwithstanding the cold January weather, and a comfortable, middle-aged, plump woman, evidently a superior type of caretaker, was sitting on a sill, polishing an inner pane. The scene was as vivid as a mirage, and it was like the mirage in that it was projected from some point which itself remained unseen.

Laurie turned to the one window the dressing-room afforded—a double French window, at his right, but a little behind him, and reaching to the floor. Through this he could see across a court the opposite side of his own building, but no such window or commonplace vision as had just come to him. In his absorption in the phenomenon he called to Bangs, who rose slowly, and, coming to his side, regarded the scene without much interest.

"It's a cross projection from a house diagonally opposite us," he said, after studying the picture a moment. "It must be that old red studio building on the southwest corner of the square. If we had a room back of this and looking toward the west, we could see the real window."

"As it is," said Laurie, "we've got a reserved seat for an intimate study of any one who lives there. I wonder who has that studio?"

Bangs had no idea. He was grateful to the little episode, however, for spreading over the yielding ground beneath his feet the solid strip on which he had crossed back to his chum. He threw an arm across Laurie's shoulders and looked into his face, with something in his expression that reminded young Devon of a favorite collie he had loved and lost in boyhood.

"All right now?" the look asked, just as the dog's look had asked it of the little chap of ten, when something had gone wrong. Rodney's creed of life was held together by a few primitive laws, the first of which was loyalty. Already he was reproaching himself for what he had said and done. Laurie carefully completed the tying of his tie, and turned to him with his gayest smile.

"Hurry up and finish dressing," he cheerfully suggested, "and we'll go out to breakfast. Since you insist on waiting 'round for me like Mary's little lamb, I suppose I've got to feed you."

Rodney's wide grin responded, for the first time in many days. He bustled about, completing his toilet, and ten minutes later the two young men started out together with a lightness of spirit which each enjoyed and neither wholly understood. Both had a healthy horror of "sentimental stuff" and a gay, normal disregard of each other's feelings in ordinary intercourse. But in the past half-hour, for the first time in their association, they had come close to a serious break, and the soul of each had been chilled by a premonitory loneliness as definite as the touch of an icy finger. In the quick reaction they experienced now their spirits soared exultantly. They breakfasted in a fellowship such as they had not known since Barbara's marriage, the month before.

MONOTONY IN WORK LOWERS VITALITY

The Question of Diversification in Industry Needs to Be Studied Not Only from Human but Also From Efficiency Standpoint.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Not long ago I heard a candidate for office making a political speech. It really was a remarkable speech. He was referring to the conditions of labor and the tremendous strides made in the industrial world in the protection of labor.

The candidate paid his respects to employers and employes in their efforts to co-operate for the community good. Then he spoke as follows:

"But the change and the growth have been so rapid that the adjustment to the new condition has been comparatively backward. The driving pace of massed production has necessarily shortened the laborer's working hours. We are facing either one of two further changes, namely, either a further reduction in the working hours or a diversification in the laborer's work. It has been found that the human machine cannot work at top speed at one job without change day in and day out except at the risk of physical or mental breakdown, or both."

There can be no doubt that some of the industrial demands are such that many employes are forced to do over and over again the most monotonous jobs in the world.

I remember writing an article two or three years ago about "Nut 48." This man had just one thing to do. He screwed on the forty-eighth nut in assembling the automobiles in the factory where he was employed. From early morning until late at night his job was to apply nut 48.

I don't need to tell you that such monotony in industry is deadening. It destroys initiative. It is discouraging in every sense.

Far be it from me to interfere with the efficiency, or the alleged efficiency, of any industry. I am not convinced, however, that this candidate for high office stated a very true thing when he said that diversification in the laborer's work is essential to further progress in industry.

You cannot handle the human machine as you do a mechanical device. It has a soul and a mind. The human machine cannot conform to the operations which can be made for an indefinite period by a machine of steel and wood.

Every employer of labor can well afford to study the question of diversification. There will be no loss of effectiveness by the installation of a plan of diversifying duties. On the contrary, "change of work is play," and the laborer who has variety in his work is sure to accomplish more in the long run than the one who does the same thing through every minute of every day.

Answers To Health Queries.

Patsy. Q.—What causes excessive perspiration under the arms?

A.—This condition is usually due to a disorder of the sympathetic nervous condition. Hot water compresses applied under the arms for half an hour are sometimes beneficial.

Mrs. M. W. P. Q.—Kindly advise me if brushing the tongue is injurious. I find this is the only way to keep it clean and prevent it from being coated.

A.—Brushing the tongue is not injurious. This is the proper way to keep it clean. Coated tongue is often due to constipation.

Mrs. E. M. Q.—What causes an aching, creeping feeling through the body and limbs, pains in the back of the head and a feeling of dizziness and sickness, accompanied by a nervous condition at times?

2.—How long does it take to regain normal health after the system has been poisoned by diseased tonsils, which have been removed?

A.—Neuritis and neurasthenia. Build up the health in general and the entire system will benefit. For further particulars, send self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2.—Depends upon the general condition of the patient, from a month to ten months or a year.

M. A. G. Q.—What should a girl of seventeen, five feet three inches tall, weigh? What should a girl of nineteen, five feet three inches tall, weigh?

A.—They should weigh respectively, 118 and 121 pounds.

A. T. Q. Q.—What is good for rough, chapped skin?

2.—What do you advise for falling hair?

A.—Careful washing, using only a good, pure soap, and drying thoroughly. Apply a good cold cream at night before retiring.

2.—Careful shampooing and the use of a good stimulating ointment. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

L. S. Q.—What do you advise for freckles where the skin is very tender?

A.—Equal parts of lemon juice and peroxide will act as a bleach. Use a good cold cream after applying the preparation, which may prove too drying for your skin.

Hoboken. Q.—Kindly advise me what are the symptoms of double hernia?

A.—There may be symptoms; just presence of swelling in groins on standing long.

Price Decline Faces Farmers With Failure

Agriculture Department Predicts Bankruptcy For Many Tillers Of Soil In United States.

Washington, July 31.—Farmers are faced with a new price depression of agriculture products that threatens to send many tillers of the soil into bankruptcy this year.

The agriculture department made public today statistics showing that farm prices dropped four points to 135 per cent of the pre-war level between June 15 and July 15—a time of year when farmers depend on the sale of their commodities to carry them over the lean winter months.

This rapid price decline did not strike business in general. While the farm prices have decreased 14 points in the last year, non-agriculture commodities declined only four points in twelve months to 160 per cent of pre-war level.

Meantime, the purchasing power of farm products has also steadily declined. The department placed the index of purchasing power for July at 87 and predicted that it would drop to 86 for July, the lowest point since December. Thus the farmers' dollar is worth 13 cents less than it was before the war.

Monett.—A mammoth baby chick hatchery with a capacity of 25,000 is to be added to this city's rapidly expanding poultry business. It will be a state accredited institution.

Paris, Mo., and Paris, France Close and Far

Herriot, Former Finance Minister, Cogratulates, H. J. Blanto On Editorial On French Debt.

Paris, Mo., July 31.—Paris, Missouri, and Paris, France—they are six thousand miles apart, with half a continent and an ocean between them, yet they have recently been connected in a most unusual way.

H. J. Blanton, editor of the Monroe County Appeal, recently received a letter from M. Herriot, then premier of France, commending an editorial on the French debt problem, which appeared in the Paris, Missouri, paper. The letter read as follows, when translated from the French:

"You have been good enough to send me a copy of an editorial of the Monroe County Appeal, in which you express to your readers your opinion of the French debt to the United States. I have taken notice of the article with interest, and thank you for the sentiments you have been good enough to express.

"Accept, Monsieur, the assurance of my distinguished respect. M. Herriot."

Durant "Cleans up" on General Motors

Financier Makes $1,500,000 In Personal Profit On Wild Run Of Stock In One Day.

New York July 31.—William C. Durant's supreme financial generalship made a personal profit of $1,500,000 for the leading operator in yesterday's run of wild trading in Wall Street, the World said today. The newspaper further credited the founder of the general motors corporation with having made close to $20,000,000 since the striking advance of that stock, which began in 1925, and continued throughout the intermittent movements to yesterday's sharp advances.

On the original high of general motors stock, when the price passed a peak of $150 last autumn, Durant's holding were said to have been 235,000 shares. Following the spring reaction in March, the operator was reported to have held 120,000 shares on which he was credited with having taken a profit of more than $8,000,000 in the movements of the market which culminated in yesterday's activity.

(1st insertion July 29, last August 17).

NOTICE OF SELECTION OF DEPOSITORY FOR SCHOOL FUNDS OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF MARYVILLE, MISSOURI.

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Directors of the School District of Maryville, Missouri, will receive sealed bids from such banks and banking corporations as may desire to be selected as depositories of the funds of the district. Bids will be received until noon of the 19th day of August, 1926. The funds of the district will be divided into three equal parts, and the bidder will state how many parts it desires. The depository or depositories selected will pay interest to the district, computed on daily balances, for all funds of the district deposited with it, and the bidder will state the highest rate of interest it will pay.

Bond for the protection of the funds deposited in the selected depository will be required under the provisions of Section 9585 R. S. 1919. Proposals may be left with the secretary of the board at his office in the Court House.

Done by order of the board.

L. C. COOK,
President.
GEO. P. WRIGHT,
Secretary.

THE CANDIDATES

Who Missouri's Senatorial Candidates Are and What They Stand for.

WILLIS H. MEREDITH.

Willis H. Meredith of Poplar Bluff, a Democratic candidate for the short term for United States Senator, was born in Iowa City, Ia., in 1875. He obtained his academic education in the public schools and the Southern Iowa Normal School. He studied law in the New York Law School. The late President Wilson was one of his instructors. Meredith's speeches teem with praise of Wilson.

He was admitted to the practice of law in Iowa in 1898. Two years later he removed to Poplar Bluff, where he opened a law office and immediately became identified with the civic affairs of that city. In 1910 he left Poplar Bluff and settled in Oregon, where he held the office of Assistant District Attorney for two years. In 1913 he returned to Poplar Bluff.

Supported Folk in 1904.

Meredith supported Joseph W. Folk for the nomination for Governor in 1904, and Folk appointed him a member of the St. Francis River Commission, which had before it the consideration of extensive drainage and reclamation projects.

He was elected Prosecuting Attorney of Butler County, which is normally Republican, in 1916, and is said to have been a vigorous prosecutor.

He served two years in that capacity. He obtained the Democratic nomination in 1918 for Circuit Judge in the district of which Butler County is a part, but was defeated in the general election.

Advocates Prohibition.

Meredith is a firm advocate of prohibition and until a few months ago was a member of the State Board of Directors of the Missouri Antisaloon League. He has its indorsement for the short-term nomination for Senator. He was indorsed for both the long and short terms by the league, following its futile efforts to get Judge Ewing Cockrell of Warrensburg to withdraw from the race.

The Antisaloon League conducted a poll in June of a portion of its membership and mailed questionnaires to several hundred Democrats whose names were submitted to Meredith and Cockrell, the purpose being to determine which of the two was the stronger. Rev. Parker Shields, superintendent, announced the poll showed Meredith the stronger on the basis of 3 to 2. Cockrell declined to withdraw, holding that the canvass conducted by the Antisaloon League was unfair to him, Meredith having been a member of its Board of Directors.

Drys Concentrate Against Hawes.

The purpose of reducing the dry candidates to one was to give the arid voters a chance to concentrate against Harry B. Hawes, who has been classified as a wet by the Antisaloon League.

After the Antisaloon League had failed to procure the withdrawal of Cockrell and had indorsed Meredith, and after a joint committee made up of five supporters of Cockrell and five of Meredith's had failed to agree upon whom should withdraw, Mrs. Nelle G. Burger, state president of the W. C. T. U., tried her hand.

She met Cockrell and Meredith in St. Louis July 16 and after a conference obtained Meredith's consent to withdraw as a candidate for the short term beginning with the November election and ending March 4. This enables drys to vote for Meredith for the short term and Cockrell for the long term.

Angles for Rural Vote.

Meredith in his speeches argues that rural Missouri is entitled to a Senator; that the cities have had the Senators for a number of years and that it is time that the country had its inning. There is a tendency in his candidacy and utterances to array country against the cities.

His candidacy finds its chief footing in the dry organizations in certain Protestant church circles of Missouri.

Meredith was the Democratic nominee for Attorney General in 1920. He defeated former State Senator Mark McGruder of Sedalia for the nomination by a vote of 91,520 to 82,075. Meredith was defeated for election as Attorney General by Jesse W. Barrett of St. Louis by 140,288. That was the year of the huge Republican landslide. The plurality against Meredith was not as great as against some of the other Democratic candidates.

Lost Attorney General Race.

He ran for Attorney General again in 1924 but was defeated for the nomination by Elmer O. Jones of La Plata. Jones got 137,560 votes and Meredith 120,814. State Senator A. L. McCawley of Carthage received 74,382.

Meredith attacks the tariff, contending that much of the distress among the farmers is caused by it. He said farmers are compelled to buy their machinery and whatever else they need in a protected market and sell their wheat at a price fixed in Liverpool. He pledges himself to work for tariff reduction.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, July 31.—Save for July wheat and corn grains in all positions closed below the previous levels on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

July wheat closed 8⅞ to 11⅜ cents higher because of extensive short covering on the last trading day of the month. The other positions were off fractionally. The market was very nervous with most of the interest in July.

The only break of the day came with the posting of local receipts which were 755 cars, the largest seen here in a long time. Cash prices were weak here but firm in the Southwest.

Corn prices sagged under the influence of better weather over the belt and the predictions of more rain. Although they grew some strength from wheat only July closed 3-8 above yesterday's figure. The other positions were 7-8 and ¾ lower. Cash prices were also a little lower.

Provisions closed lower on the drop in hog prices.

Speaker Here Monday Commended by Job

Says Dr. G. W. Dyer One Of Best Speakers In United States—Makes Two Talks Here.

"I would like to especially call the attention of the public to the talk that will be given by Dr. G. W. Dyer, Dean of Economics, Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., at the First M. E. Church on Monday evening, August 2, at 8 o'clock," says Representative William Job today.

Continuing Representative Job says:

"Dr. Dyer is one of the best speakers in the United States today. Among other things he will discuss the necessity for efficiency and economy in the expenditures of public funds by our state, county and local government which every taxpayer should be more familiar than they are.

"He will also discuss the Workman's Compensation Law, passed by the last Assembly, which is known as Proposition No. 1 and explain the difference between that and Proposition No. 3 placed on the ballot by Initiative petition, by a few labor leaders and damage suit lawyers, to confuse the voter with the hope of defeating both measures. Everyone who is interested and can get in the church should hear him. He is a real entertainer as well as speaker."

Sale of Chautauqua Tickets Excellent

Miss Fay K. Moore, Junior Supervisor, Expected To Arrive In Maryville Tomorrow Morning.

A preliminary check-up this noon of the advanced sale of season tickets for the 1926 Maryville Chautauqua, which opens here on next Thursday afternoon, reveals the fact that the more than forty firms and individuals who are selling tickets are meeting with excellent results. It appears probable that the reduced price will not remain in effect longer than noon on Monday. Therefore all who can conveniently do so should arrange to purchase their season tickets tonight or Monday morning.

The latest addition to the list of volunteer ticket sellers is Harold Braun. Competition for the $10.00 and $5.00 merchandise prizes to be given to the individuals selling the highest and the next highest number of tickets is waxing keen. Walter Allen reported 32 tickets sold this morning, with many good prospects still to be seen. The ladies of the First M. E. Church are making a thorough canvas.

Miss Fay K. Moore, Junior Supervisor, is expected to arrive in the city tomorrow morning from Onawa, Ia., according to W. J. Berry, advance agent, who has been here since Wednesday and will remain until the opening day. Miss Moore requests all children from the age of 6 to 12 to meet her at the Chautauqua grounds (northeast corner of the Central School campus) at 9 a. m., Monday. Games for boys and girls of all ages will be taught and played. Kites are furnished the boys, and the girls will learn to make crepe paper dresses for dolls. Miss Moore will remain in Maryville until the Chautauqua closes, Aug. 11th, working with the children every morning except Sunday.

Dickey's Attorneys Preparing Evidence

Announce They Are Ready To Take Depositions In Suit To Set Aside Recent Sale Of K. C. Star.

Kansas City, July 31.—Attorneys for Walter S. Dickey, owner of the Kansas City Journal-Post, announced today they were ready for the taking of depositions in the suit filed yesterday by Dickey against the University trustees of the estate of William R. Nelson, Attorney-General North T. Gentry and others to set aside the sale of the Kansas City Star and Times recently sold to a group of employes headed by Irwin Kirkwood for eleven million dollars.

Dickey's attorneys announce they are already getting together the evidence which will be introduced in the suit for reopening the bidding that resulted in the sale to the Kirkwood group.

The attorneys for Dickey are Miller, Winger & Reeder. This firm is headed by Arthur Miller, former Maryville boy, who is in Maryville attending the funeral services of his mother, Mrs. Catherine Miller, which were held this morning.

"Never Such Power!"

America's most efficient car

The fastest selling new Six of its price

$1495 For This DeLuxe Knight Motored 4-Door Sedan

Speed between 60 and 70 honest miles an hour.
Extraordinarily long sustained high speed.
Power on any hill to pass most cars in high.
Quick as a cat—5 to 25 miles in 7½ seconds.
Powerful four-wheel mechanical brakes, the last word in safety.
54 horsepower, long stroke motor, rated at 20.
The tax saving is only part of its economy.

The "70" Willys-Knight Six is the most efficient automobile this country ever produced.

It is the most up-to-date.

Only 7 months old. Yet today sales are leading the entire procession.

The most active car of its price ever built, it is the sensational new value of American motoring.

With the most powerful standard motor of its size in America.

The latest word in modern engineering, this new car has galloped into first place in the shortest time on record.

Standard Sedan . .	$1395
4-Door Sedan . . .	1495
Coupe	1395
Touring	1295

The motor of this car is an exclusive feature—which other manufacturers would pay millions to get.

This feature, the famous Willys-Knight sleeve-valve motor, is patented.

It has been repeatedly proved to be the most efficient type of automobile motor built.

Better and more powerful than any other motor of its size when new, it grows smoother, more powerful, more efficient with every mile.

It has no valves to grind.

You never lay it up for carbon-cleaning.

It has no springs to weaken.

It is practically foolproof and wear-proof.

No Willys-Knight motor, so far as we know, has ever worn out . . .

"In my several years experience with various racing cars I have driven them all, but never have I known such power and activity and even running speed in any stock car as this one has" . . .

This is what an internationally famous racing man says. He picked the new "70" Willys-Knight Six for his personal car.

Please examine the new "70" Willys-Knight Six.

It is the companion car to the famous Willys-Knight Great Six.

The new Willys Finance Plan means less money down; smaller monthly payments; and the lowest credit-cost. Prices f. o. b. factory and specifications subject to change without notice. Willys-Knight Great Six prices are: Touring, 5-Pass., $1750, Touring, 7-Pass., $1950; Roadster, $1850; Coupe, $2195; Sedan, 5-Pass., $2295; Sedan, 7-Pass., $2495.
